ISDH reports sixth local COVID-19 death

Since Saturday, the state has reported nine additional local positive tests; total now 210

By ROB BURGESS
Wabash Plain Dealer Editor

On Monday, the Indiana State Department of Health (ISDH) reported another local COVID-19 death, bringing Wabash County's total to six.

On Tuesday, Keith Walters, Wabash County Emergency Management Agency (EMA) director, said he did not have any additional information as to whether this latest fatality was a resident of one of the local long-term care facilities. Walters referred all other inquiries to the Wabash County Health Department. A request for additional information sent to Dr. David G. Roe, Wabash County health officer, was not immediately returned as of press time. This story will be updated as more information becomes available.

Local figures

On Saturday, the ISDH reported 36 new local tests, bringing Wabash County's total to 4,016 tests.

On Sunday, the ISDH reported three additional local positive COVID-19 cases, bringing Wabash County's total to 205.

On Monday, the ISDH reported four additional local positive COVID-19 cases, bringing Wabash County's total to 209.

On Tuesday, the ISDH reported another local positive COVID-19 case, bringing Wabash County's total to 210. The local seven-day positivity rate for all tests was 3.4 percent. The local seven-day positivity rate for unique individuals was 3.7 percent.

As of Tuesday, the ISDH reported the following Wabash County demographics for positive cases by age group:

■ Ages 0 to 19: 14.8 percent
■ Ages 20 to 29: 18.6 percent
■ Ages 30 to 39: 15.7 percent
■ Ages 40 to 49: 11.9 percent
■ Ages 50 to 59: 10.5 percent
■ Ages 60 to 69: 12.4 percent
■ Ages 70 to 79: 7.1 percent
■ Ages 80 and above: 9 percent
The ISDH reported the following gender breakdowns for Wabash County positive cases:
■ Female: 58.1 percent

NMPL, WCPL expanding hours, services as the state opens back up

By ROB BURGESS
Wabash Plain Dealer Editor

On Wednesday, Aug. 26, Gov. Eric J. Holcomb announced that he was extending the state's face covering mandate and continuing Stage 4.5 of the Back On Track Indiana plan until Sept. 25.

And while the state isn't completely back to what-ever was classified as being normal before March, local libraries have begun to loosen some restrictions.

As of Tuesday, Sept. 1, the North Manchester Public Library (NMPL) resumed normal hours of operation. The hours are 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. Mondays through Thursdays, and 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays. The library will remain closed on Sundays.

"The library asks all patrons to continue to follow social distancing guidelines and to continue to use the sanitizing stations throughout the library. As long as the mask mandate continues, all patrons are required to wear masks in the library. The library will continue to offer curbside services to all patrons and encourages anyone who feels uncomfortable coming into the library to utilize this service," said Jeanna Hann, NMPL adult department manager and marketing coordinator.

Hann said the NMPL has also resumed bookings of the Blocher Community Room, with occupancy of the room will be limited to 40 people, and masks required.

"The library is so grateful to the wonderful community for all the support during this time," said Hann. "The library thanks everyone for doing their part to keep staff and patrons safe."

Ware W. Wimberly III, executive director of the Wabash Carnegie Public Library (WCPL), said that while they aren't completely back to regular hours, they were "getting closer to that." Wimberly said starting Monday they were open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays, and from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturdays.

"We are back to regular hours except for the evenings and Saturday mornings. We will continue to evaluate and hope to be open those evenings and Saturday mornings soon," said Wimberly. "We greatly appreciate the community's patience as we gradually continue to look to get back to normal hours of operation. As with North Manchester, we are continuing to have curbside service available to library patrons on Monday, Wednesday and Friday."

Northfield takes on Tippecanoe Valley during senior night

The Norse will be back in action Sept. 4 against Maconaquah

Fans packed the stands at Northfield High School on Friday evening, in honor of Senior Night, as the Norsemen hosted their first football game of the season. After a tough loss last weekend to Bluffton, the Norse were out for redemption against Tippecanoe Valley.

Despite a great late push from the Norse, the Vikings took an early lead and never looked back. The Norsemen surrendered a touchdown on the opening possession before the game turned into a defensive battle. Much of the first quarter was spent with both teams fighting for field possession, with neither gaining many yards. The Norse defense broke first as the Vikings scored again, ending the first quarter with a score of 12 to 0.

The Norse continued with their ground attack much of the night, as the combination of Mason Fisher and Jarret Shafer drove them downfield. With time running out in the first half,

Parkview Wabash named one of the state's Best Places to Work Indiana Chamber unveils this year's rankings during a virtual presentation

By ROB BURGESS
Wabash Plain Dealer Editor

The Indiana Chamber of Commerce honored 125 companies from across the state late last month at the 2020 Best Places to Work in Indiana celebration, sponsored by Ivy Tech Community College.

Rankings for the organizations were revealed in four categories via a new virtual experience that enabled employers to host their gatherings in real-time to share the news with as many employees as possible, according to Rebecca Patrick, vice president of public relations and government communications.

Coming in at number 10 in the "Medium Companies" category, which includes businesses with between 75 and 249 employees, was Parkview Wabash Hospital.

"We were thrilled to receive this award from the Indiana Chamber," said Marilyn Custer-Mitchell, president of Parkview Wabash Hospital. "Being recognized in the top 125 Indiana workplaces is a huge honor in and of itself, but then coming in 10th out of 40 in the 'Medium Companies' category is a real tribute to our co-workers and the excellent care they provide to our patients and families each and every day."

Patrick said all companies that participated in the 2020

Crouch, OCRA award Taking Care of Main Street grants

Wabash Marketplace, Manchester Alive among the 40 recipients

By ROB BURGESS
Wabash Plain Dealer Editor

On Monday, Lt. Gov. Suzanne Crouch and the Indiana Office of Community and Rural Affairs (OCRA) announced 40 Indiana Main Street programs will receive $200,000 through Taking Care of Main Street. This is a new program providing operational support for Indiana Main Street organizations impacted by COVID-19, according to Melissa Thomas, OCRA communications manager.

"The goal of this program is to support Indiana Main Street organizations that provide leadership and services to the businesses and members, using the Main Street Approach, with special attention to organizations that have been significantly impacted by COVID-19," said Thomas. "Eligible expenses could include salaries, administrative fees, space or equipment rental, or staff development and training."

Among the awardees were local organizations Wabash Marketplace and Manchester Alive.

Indiana lawyer picked for state appeals court

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — A lawyer from southeastern Indiana was appointed Tuesday to the state Court of Appeals, giving the panel a seventh woman among its 15 judges.

Gov. Eric Holcomb picked Leanna Weissmann from the Dearborn County city of Aurora from among three finalists, all women, selected by the state's Judicial Nominating Commission. She will replace Judge John Baker, who retired from the court in July after serving 31 years.

The state appeals court is an intermediate step between county courts and the Indiana Supreme Court on appeals of criminal and civil law cases. Weissmann will join the appeals court without experience as a full-time county judge like those on the court typically have.

Holcomb pointed to Weissmann's experience with more 400 appeal cases on both civil and criminal issues, including arguing before the Court of Appeals and the Indiana Supreme Court.

Weissmann has also been a member of the state's attorney disciplinary commission since 2013.

Manchester Alive plans to purchase equipment to help create interviews, videos and photos for social media and websites; to execute a downtown celebration and help supplement office support salaries.

Wabash Marketplace will use the funding towards part-time employees' salaries.

"Sometimes the public forgets that Wabash Marketplace and Manchester Alive are part of a large network called Main Street. Main Street organizations are similar to the Chamber of Commerce but focused on downtown districts. This is the first time the State has offered operational funding to Main Street organizations. We are grateful for the support this year," said Andrea Zwiebel, Wabash Marketplace executive director. "Wabash Marketplace is one of 133 Main Streets in Indiana, and only 30 of those organizations have paid staff. We are utilizing the funds to cover a portion of salaries. Our members of the team have expertise in nonprofit administration, event planning, and volunteer management. Wabash is fortunate to have a professional Main Street focused on downtown revitalization."

NORTHFIELD

Trent Osborne connected on a 25-yard field goal attempt to send the Norse into the half trailing 12 to 3.

As the second half progressed, the Norse gave up another rushing touchdown falling behind 18 to 3. With the Northfield offense still stagnant, the big play they needed came off of a defensive interception from Clayton Tomlinson. As the offense was looking for a spark late in the fourth quarter, they finally found the end zone for the first time of the night. With 4:10 left in the game, Clayton Tomlinson connected with Jayden Peas from 11 yards out. A successful PAT by Osborne found the Norse trailing only 18 to 10.

Despite a very strong effort from the defensive unit, the Vikings ground attack ran the clock out and the Norse were unable to get another possession in hopes to complete the comeback. Shafer led the team in rushing yards with 142, with Mason Fisher adding 56. Clayton Tomlinson and Jake Haldeman fueled the passing game, passing for 107 yards and 47 yards, respectively.

The Northfield Norsemen return to action at 7 p.m. Friday, Sept. 4, seeking their first win of the season as they travel to Maconaquah High School.

BBB warns online face mask retailer has a high volume of complaints

Group has received 61 complaints, 56 negative reviews for online retailer Hyperfavor

STAFF REPORT

The Better Business Bureau (BBB) is warning consumers that it has received 61 Complaints and 56 negative Customer Reviews for the online retailer, Hyperfavor, according to Ashley Gibbard, digital media specialist.

The business, which claims to be based out of Sheridan, Wyoming, operates the website, hyperfavor.com, where it sells themed and customizable apparel- including a wide assortment of cloth face coverings.

Consumer interest in this business has skyrocketed as face masks have become mandated in regions across the country. BBB has received more than 19,000 inquiries on Hyperfavor’s Business Profile since the end of April.

Consumers report order fulfillment concerns including delayed shipments and receiving partial orders. Many complainants allege never receiving ordered merchandise despite extensive waiting times.

Complainants also allege receiving tracking numbers that appear to be fraudulent or that never update.

A Michigan consumer reported being charged and receiving a tracking number for their order but never receiving their masks. After reaching out to Hyperfavor, they received responses saying the order would be “shipped in a few days.”

Eventually, the consumer reached out to USPS, who said they did not have that tracking number in their system.

BBB notes that the Sheridan, Wyoming address advertised by the company is a commercial registered agent’s location and not typically a physical place of business. Furthermore, BBB has been unable to locate a registration on file with the Wyoming Secretary of State.

BBB has attempted to contact the company via email, postal mail, and telephone regarding the pattern of complaints filed and to seek information regarding their business practices, structure, and location. The business has not responded to our concerns at this time.

The company currently has an “F” rating based on the volume of complaints received and their failure to respond to the majority of them.

When shopping online, BBB advises consumers:

■ Research the seller’s reputation and track record at BBB.org.

■ Think before you click and be especially cautious about email solicitations and online ads on social media sites.

■ Review and understand the company’s Terms and Conditions

■ Save copies of your order confirmation and any emails for future reference and as a record of your purchase.

■ Review the company’s privacy policy and understand what personal information is being collected and how it will be used.

■ Confirm that the company provides valid contact information so that you can reach the business if necessary.

Grow Wabash County Annual Celebration Dinner set for Oct. 8

Halderman Real Estate & Farm Management to be honored as 2020 Business of the Year

STAFF REPORT

Registration is open for Grow Wabash County’s 2020 Annual Celebration Dinner, set to take place on the evening of Thursday, Oct. 8, at the Honeywell Center, according to Chelsea Boulrisse, project manager for marketing and events.

As part of the annual festivities, Grow Wabash County will have the “distinct honor” of recognizing Halderman Real Estate & Farm Management as the 2020 Business of the Year.

“Halderman has demonstrated what it truly means to be a pillar in the Wabash County community. Over the past 90 years, Halderman and the Halderman family have devoted themselves to serving the local community in a variety of ways,” said Boulrisse.

This year will feature Parker Beauchamp, CEO of INGUARD, as the event emcee. Pastor John Cook of the Wabash First United Methodist Church will offer up the event’s invocation. 2019 Distinguished Citizen award recipient, Bill Barrows, will also attend to present the 2020 Distinguished Citizen award. As is tradition, the recipient is kept secret to everyone and will be revealed at the time of the award’s presentation.

“Grow Wabash County has worked closely with the Honeywell Center to implement certain health and safety protocols to organize the event in a way that allows for all of our guests and volunteers to enjoy the evening without concerns of health and safety,” said Boulrisse. “The social hour will be hosted in the lobby area of the Honeywell Center and will feature added seating, appetizer stations and bars dispersed throughout the lobby and mezzanine to allow for social distancing.

The tables for the plated dinner will be properly spaced according to social distance guidelines in Legacy Hall and the Honeywell Room. Awards and presentations will be presented in the Ford Theatre with staggered seating. Additionally, all mandates regarding masks and other safety precautions in place at the time of the event will be followed. Masks and hand sanitizer will be made available for those who need them. Join Grow Wabash County for an evening of celebration after a challenging year as we honor some of Wabash County’s greatest champions and look ahead to what exciting things will be in store for the future.”

For more information, visit www.growwabashcounty.com/2020annualdinner, email marketing@growwabashcounty.com or call 260-563-5258.

Wabash Marketplace announces September First Friday details

The theme this month will be ‘Celebrating Diversity’

STAFF REPORT

Organized by Wabash Marketplace, First Friday encourages the community to celebrate from 5 to 8 p.m. Friday, Sept. 4 in downtown Wabash, according to Andrea Zwiebel, executive director.

“Downtown will be active with activities including food trucks, vendors, live music, kids’ activities and downtown shopping deals,” said Zwiebel.

Zwiebel said the Back-On-Track Indiana plan recommendations will be in effect, including:

■ Social distancing at least 6 feet.

■ Retail business at full capacity.

■ Restaurants at 75 percent capacity.

■ Bars, clubs, entertainment and tourism at 50 percent capacity.

“Please note that face coverings are required for all First Friday activities. This change is in response to Gov. Eric Holcomb’s executive order stating that face coverings are required ‘in an outdoor public space wherever it is not feasible to maintain six feet of social distancing from another person not in the same household.’ There are a handful of exclusions including children under 8 years old and persons with medical conditions,” said Zwiebel.

Zwiebel said the theme for September is ‘Celebrating Diversity.’

“Join us in Downtown Wabash to celebrate diversity with food trucks, vendors and downtown deals,” said Zwiebel.

Zwiebel said Miami Street will include free hand sanitizer stations and vendors including Paparazzi Jewelry, Color Street Nails, New Song Church, Gardens of Memory, New Journey Church, Kona Ice food truck, Super Sue’s BBQ and Payne’s Restaurant food truck. The Wal-lens will be performing in the Courtyard of Charley Creek Inn. The trolley will be offering free rides with stops at White Rock Recreation, Eagles Theatre, and The Depot.

For more information, visit www.wabashmarketplace.org or call 260-563-0975.

IPL to pay $1.5M to settle pollution issues at Petersburg

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Indianapolis Power & Light Co. has agreed to pay more than $1.5 million in penalties to resolve pollution issues at its Petersburg Generating Station in southwestern Indiana.

IPL will pay a civil penalty of $1.525 million, with $925,000 going to the federal government and $600,000 to the state of Indiana, the Indianapolis Business Journal reported.

The settlement is subject to approval by U.S. District Court in Indianapolis.

The 1,700-megawatt station located about 120 miles southwest of Indianapolis is IPL’s largest power plant.

IPL said in December it would retire two of the four coal-burning units at the plant by 2023. In response, the Justice Department said Monday that if IPL actually does retire those units by 2030, it will not have to install expensive pollution-control equipment on one of its coal-fired units.

IPL must reduce the plant’s emissions of nitrogen oxides, sulfur dioxide, particulate matter and sulfuric acid mist. All four units at Petersburg have violated pollution regulations, according to EPA inspection reports.

Under the agreement, IPL said it will spend $5 million on non-polluting generating sources at Petersburg to support the plant’s auxiliary load requirements. It will also acquire and donate an unspecified amount of “ecologically significant lands.” Plans also may include funding for planting native trees, grasses and wildflower on acquired lands in the future, IPL said.

The watchdog group Citizens Action Coalition of Indiana said the agreement does not actually provide much of a penalty to IPL.

“IPL was already planning to retire those Petersburg units,” said Kerwin Olson, the group’s executive director.

Northfield sweeps Mississinewa in a battle of the unbeatens

Norse used the occasion to hold Senior Night

By SCOTT HUNT
Chronicle-Tribune Sports Editor

The 2020 high school volleyball season simply couldn't have started better for the teams from both Mississinewa and Northfield.

However, something had to give Wednesday night when the Indians trekked onto the home court of the Norsemen in a battle of unbeaten teams.

Northfield used the occasion to hold Senior Night, and behind its six seniors, the Norse rode the emotion and momentum of the moment to a dominating first set and 25-11 decision.

From there it wasn't so easy, though.

Still, after a pair of dramatic late-set comebacks, Northfield recorded a hard-earned sweep with 27-25, 25-20 wins over the final two sets to run its record to 6-0.

"It's very beneficial that I have six seniors and they've been together forever," said Northfield coach Kat Hauptert. "They haven't been able to play as six seniors because we've had injuries the past two seasons, so it's nice to have all six of them finally together and I know they're pumped about that. I know they feed off of each other, they encourage each other, they love each other. They're amazing."

Ole Miss led just once in the first set, at 3-2, before Northfield started to edge away. Back-to-back kills by Kyra Kennedy put the Norse on top, 9-5, and forced Indians' coach Jody Havens to use a timeout.

The pause in play worked, momentarily, and Mississinewa used a block by junior Megan Stanley and kill from senior Darah Watson to cut the deficit to two.

Northfield then ran off six-straight points and scored nine of the next 10 to assume control, 18-8, then outscored Ole Miss 7-3 to earn the first set win.

The Indians controlled the second set from the start, jumping out to a 7-2 lead and eventually extending it to 13-7. Northfield rallied to within 13-11, but then Mississinewa ran off five consecutive points to build its lead back to 18-11 forcing Hauptert to take a timeout.

"I told them they had to start playing our game," Hauptert said of her message during the timeout. "Our game which is fast-paced, scrappy and before that we hadn't been playing that. We had to play disciplined because we weren't playing disciplined. We had to clean it up, play disciplined and play our game."

Northfield scored the next three points, two with kills off the powerful right arm of senior Addi Baker.

Ole Miss had an answer, though, and scored five of the next seven to lead 23-16. The Indians stood just a point from evening the match at 24-19, but the Norse scored the next six to take their first lead at 25-24.

Mississinewa scored to tie it before Northfield closed it out with the final two points, a 27-25 win and a commanding 2-0 lead.

The Indians put themselves in a position to extend the match in the third set, building a lead of 16-10 then holding an advantage of 18-13 when the tide again turned.

Northfield scored five-straight points to tie the set at 18, then eventually extended the run to 12-2, and closed out the sweep with a 25-20 margin in the last set.

"It's a disappointing night because you always want to bring your game and you want to play it from the first point to the last point. The letdowns we had tonight were unacceptable," Havens said. "Player for player, it is what it is. That should have been a great match. Win or lose in the end, it definitely should have gone further than it did."

"We talked about being responsible for our energy, holding yourselves accountable and making sure that we move on to the next point and not dwell on the previous point," she continued. "We did not do that tonight. The good thing, we got a glimpse of what the future could be."

The defeat was the first for Mississinewa after seven-straight wins, which included winning the Elwood Invitational on Saturday.

Junior Carly Bolser led the Indians with six kills while Watson and Staney each had three. Junior Sophie Corey had three digs and junior Jazzy Nicholson dished out 12 assists.

"Our discussion was about more what we did to ourselves," Havens said. "This isn't a group that usually can't handle pressure. That's actually something they have demonstrated successfully this season."

"(Northfield has) a couple of strong hitters and I think that shock and awe is kind of a momentum stealer for some reason for us," she added. "We struggled to mentally regain our focus and move on. ... Instead of letting it compile into two and three and allow a run that eventually takes the lead from us."

Baker, a senior, led Northfield with 13 kills while her classmates Kenzie Baer and Abigail Hunter had six and five kills, respectively. Kennedy finished with four kills. Emily Gottschalk had three aces, including two in Northfield's late second-set run, and matched Kennedy with 13 digs. Hunter dished out 23 assists.

Hauptert wasn't pleased by Northfield's performance, but the team has set big goals and will have to play much better going forward to reach them.

"The one thing we keep talking about ... we want to win the conference. We want to win sectional, want to win regional and semistate," she shared. "We just have to keep setting that bar higher and higher every game and every practice. We have to work twice as hard and be twice as disciplined, which we struggled with tonight."

"We have a lot of work ahead of us," Hauptert continued. "That's a good part about these girls, they're hard-working girls. They're motivated. We'll get them there."

Sara Emerich, associate head softball coach, will take over as the head softball coach of the Spartans.

Emerich takes over as head softball coach at Manchester

Josh Dzurick, former head coach, will remain active in the program

STAFF REPORT

Manchester University Athletics has announced a change within its softball program, according to Dillon Bender, sports information director.

Sara Emerich, associate head softball coach, will take over as the head softball coach of the Spartans.

Josh Dzurick, former head coach, will remain active in the program, serving as its assistant coach. Dzurick also serves as the associate director of athletics for compliance and the head women's basketball coach at MU.

"Just a little role reversal," said Bender. "This change gives Josh a little more flexibility since his plate is quite full with associate AD duties and head women's basketball coaching duties."

Emerich has spent five years as an assistant coach within the Manchester softball program, split across two separate stints. During her first stop in North Manchester, from 2013-2017, Emerich was a part of a Spartans program that won 60 games and produced eight All-Heartland Collegiate Athletic Conference honorees. She also coached a pair of HCAC Freshman of the Year. Additionally, Emerich also spent two years as the Senior Women's Administrator at Manchester from 2015-2017.

After a two-year stint at NCAA Division II-member Quincy University in Illinois, Emerich returned to North Manchester in the fall of 2019 as its associate head coach.

Emerich earned a Bachelor of Science degree in Business Administration from West Liberty University in 2013. She played softball for the Hilltoppers and was an Academic All-American during her time at WLU. Emerich graduated with a Master of Arts degree in Coaching and Athletic Administration from Concordia University Irvine in 2016.

HCAC postpones all fall competitions

The winter sports of basketball, swimming, diving will not compete before January 2021

STAFF REPORT

After continued analysis and deliberation, the Heartland Collegiate Athletic Conference (HCAC) Council of Presidents has voted unanimously to postpone all conference-related contests and competitions, including HCAC Championships slated for fall 2020, according to Dillon Bender, sports information director for Manchester University.

The HCAC Council of Presidents had previously decided to modify the timing of conference competition and championships for fall sports classified by the NCAA as high contact risk – football, men's and women's soccer, women's volleyball – and to conduct conference competition for those sports during the spring. The latest vote also postpones competition in those sports the NCAA classified as medium and low contact risk (women's golf, women's tennis and men's and women's cross country).

"The HCAC Council of Presidents felt that member institutions have made every reasonable effort to conduct safe competitions this fall, meeting the resocialization expectations of the NCAA. Given the recent statement from the Division III leadership, the council voted to suspend conference-related competition until Jan. 1, 2021," said Bender.

Bender said in adjusting to the challenges presented by the pandemic, these modifications maintain safety as the highest priority but help ensure the opportunity for as much participation as possible in each HCAC sport.

"In light of this difficult decision, Manchester University and its athletics staff are still committed to offering its student-athletes an engaging athletic experience with extensive team activities this fall followed by competitive seasons in the spring," said Rick Espeset, director of athletics and head baseball coach at Manchester.

The winter sports of basketball – defined as high contact risk sport by the NCAA – and swimming and diving – classified as a low contact risk sport by the NCAA – will not hold conference competition before January 2021.

The HCAC and Manchester University will continue to explore all options for a safe return to intercollegiate athletics. The HCAC leadership will communicate further developments regarding competition in 2020-21 as solutions are finalized and implemented. The priority of the HCAC, its Council of Presidents, and Manchester University continues to be a commitment to the health and safety of its student-athletes, coaches, support staff and the campus community.

Toddler uses foul language she learned from her dad

DEAR ABBY: Although he has never hit me, my husband has been emotionally and verbally abusive ever since our wedding five years ago. One of his favorite names for me when he's angry is "F--- -n' B----." I know this is my fault because I have tolerated it. Today, my 2 1/2-year-old daughter (who is usually a good girl) threw a tantrum and called me the same name twice. I try to discipline her, but she doesn't understand that she's saying something bad if Daddy can call me that. How can she? He blames me for her talking that way, saying he hasn't called me that in a month. (He called me that last week. I don't use that language.)

I have suggested marriage counseling in the past, but he refused. I can't leave him because I am seven months pregnant with our second child. How do I get both of them to respect me? — Disrespected In The East

DEAR DISRESPECTED: You know that appointment you wanted to make for you and your husband with a licensed marriage and family therapist? Make one for yourself, right now, because what's going on isn't healthy for you or your little girl.

Your husband demeans you because from the moment you married him you have allowed it. Your 2-year-old isn't being disrespectful when she calls you what her father does. Children her age want attention, and they are mimics. Giving them attention when they use bad language reinforces them to do it more.

Please do as I'm suggesting before you conceive a third child. From your description of your relationship with your husband, his verbal abuse and the disrespect it conveys WILL be an example for your children that will follow them into adulthood.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 37-year-old mother of two (ages 9 and 11). My husband and I have built a beautiful life together. We live in close proximity to his family, whom I absolutely love.

My question involves my own family. My father passed away 2 1/2 years ago. We were very close, so it is an ongoing struggle for me. My mother has since disowned me and my children. She's a textbook narcissist who has said many very hurtful things and has a new man and new life. Our relationship was always strained, and I knew it wouldn't be the same without Dad because he was the glue.

I have come to terms with this for myself, but we haven't talked to our children about it. How do I explain to them that their grandma doesn't want to be a part of their life? They love her and ask about her often, so I keep making stuff up.

She won't answer phone calls from me or my husband. I believe she has us blocked. She has also blocked us on social media along with other family members.

I want my kids to know the truth, but I don't want to hurt them. How can I do this? — Motherless In Ohio

DEAR MOTHERLESS: Stick as close to the truth as you can, with some editing. If your children ask about their grandmother, explain that people deal with the death of a loved one in different ways. In your mother's case, "She needed to look forward and not look back. Because your grandfather's death was so painful, she is concentrating on things other than family, and although we might miss her, we should be comforted that she has found a way to cope. It may not be what we would have wished, but it is her way, and we have to respect it and go on with our own lives."

Heaven cannot perfect anything or anyone

Q: After going through the coronavirus pandemic, I long for Heaven that will make us perfect. Is this wrong? — P.H.

A: Heaven is perfect — but by itself, Heaven cannot perfect anything or anyone; Heaven cannot save us. Only God the King of Heaven makes it perfect and all of its residents perfect. So while Heaven reflects the perfection of its Ruler, it's the Lord Himself who perfects His people.

The Bible has much to say about the perfection of the One who occupies Heaven's glory. "Ascribe greatness to our God. ... His work is perfect ... righteous and upright is He" (Deuteronomy 32:3-4).

The heavens declare that God's instruction is perfect (Psalm 19:7). His peace is perfect (Isaiah 26:3); God's will is perfect (Romans 12:2); the Father in Heaven is perfect (Matthew 5:48); Jesus Christ is the perfect leader (Hebrews 2:10); and He alone is the perfect sacrifice (Hebrews 9:11). Only the One who is perfection can perfect others through His perfect sacrifice (Hebrews 10:14).

How can we be assured of this? Because the Bible says so and without perfect faith in God's Son — there is no redemption. Jesus Christ who is the Word is the ultimate authority that needs no other supporting documentation or testimony. The Scripture tells us that the Lord is able to save completely those who come to God through Him (Hebrews 7:21-22, 25), and He perfects our faith to believe wholly in Him.

We like to think about what joy Heaven will bring, but consider what we will not encounter. There will be no more sin, no more physical pain, no more disease, no more loneliness, no more daily stress, no more abuse, no more weariness, no more aging process, and no more death. To be in Christ's eternal presence is Heaven.

Trump promises more of the same in a second term – and that’s frightening

In accepting the Republican nomination for a second term as president, Donald Trump sounded lofty themes of national unity and love for country while also offering a glowing and highly exaggerated account of his stewardship. He claimed, for example, that he had done more for African Americans than any president since Abraham Lincoln and promised to produce a coronavirus vaccine “before the end of the year or maybe even sooner.”

He also made characteristically reckless attacks on his Democratic opponent, suggesting that the election of Joe Biden would threaten the American way of life. “Despite all of our greatness as a nation, everything we have achieved is now endangered,” Trump ominously warned. “This election will decide whether we save the American dream, or whether we allow a socialist agenda to demolish our cherished destiny.... Your vote will decide whether we protect law-abiding Americans, or whether we give free rein to violent anarchists, agitators and criminals who threaten our citizens.”

His broadside against Biden was a reminder of how this president has trafficked in demagoguery and distortion throughout his time in office. It also undermined attempts by his party during its virtual convention to project a more optimistic and inclusive message that might peel away enough voters to secure the president’s reelection.

That sort of fear-mongering was a central theme of Trump’s speech Thursday, and it echoed a recurring convention motif that a Democratic victory in November would bring about a dystopian nightmare of socialism, unchecked rioting and liberal thought police. The protests sparked by the deaths of George Floyd and other Black Americans at the hands of police were another recurring theme – not because of the issues they raised, but because of the violence they have at times unleashed. For Trump and his allies, the issue isn’t just law and order, it’s the fear of a cultural reckoning.

The convention’s culture warriors included Mark and Patricia McCloskey, a white couple from St. Louis who pointed firearms at protesters marching past their home and face charges of felony unlawful use of a weapon. Echoing Trump’s racially freighted rhetoric, Patricia McCloskey warned on Monday that Democrats would “bring crime, lawlessness and low-quality apartments into thriving suburban neighborhoods.” She added: “No matter where you live, your family will not be safe in the radical Democrats’ America.”

The speakers’ hyperbolic warnings occasionally bore some relationship to actual events. Some cities are, in fact, riven by violent protests. But the proceedings often felt like a festival of falsehoods and exaggerations – not just about Democratic nominee Joe Biden, but also about the president’s character and record. The speakers largely ignored the ongoing COVID-19 pandemic (no masks in sight!), the millions of jobless Americans and Trump’s lack of a second-term agenda; instead, they sought to distract from his abrasive, blame-shifting and often inept leadership by declaring him a strong president who cares deeply about all Americans and who can single-handedly restore the economy to record-setting heights.

That reality-challenged rhetoric reflected the personality cult that is the Trump presidency as well as today’s GOP. The party didn’t even bother to adopt a new platform, which would have required getting Republican leaders across the country to agree on principles and a plan for the next four years. Instead, it referred voters to its 2016 version while saying that it “will continue to enthusiastically support the president’s America first agenda.”

The convention also reflected Trump’s proclivity for blurring the distinction between his political interests and those of the nation, a blind spot that led to his impeachment after he attempted to have Ukraine, a nation desperately dependent on aid from the United States, to investigate Biden. It wasn’t just that Trump used the White House as a backdrop for his acceptance speech. A naturalization ceremony for new citizens was woven into the convention’s partisan programming, and Secretary of State Michael R. Pompeo addressed the convention from Jerusalem, despite the tradition that the nation’s top diplomat should abstain from partisan political activities.

Yet the GOP also tried to project a more optimistic and inclusive message, one that might induce a requisite number of voters – including suburban women troubled by Trump’s callousness and casual bigotry – to vote for the president without too many pangs of conscience. Numerous speakers of color were featured over the four days, along with multiple individuals testifying to Trump’s concern for them as small-business people or individuals forgotten by Washington. First Lady Melania Trump acknowledged the hardships suffered by many Americans this year and reminded the audience that “we are all one community, comprised of many races, religions and ethnicities.”

It’s doubtful how successful these kinder, gentler themes would have been in obscuring Trump’s actual record of demagoguery, dishonesty and divisiveness. But the president’s unfair attacks on his opponent made it clear what another Trump term would be like: More of the same, in terms of both belligerent policy and caustic bluster. He is what he is.

What country does Mike Pence live in?

What 176,000-plus deaths from COVID-19? What devastating shutdown and recession? What double-digit unemployment? What mass uncertainty over whether and how to open the schools? What shocking police killings of African Americans? What long-overdue reckoning with systemic racism?

Let me put it another way: What country does Vice President Mike Pence live in?

During his acceptance speech at the Republican National Convention on Wednesday, Pence sounded as though he lived in some kind of fantasyland that perhaps had encountered a few tiny little bumps in the road. His party has spent the week claiming to represent “the common man,” but Pence spoke as though he knew next to nothing about the daunting challenges that Americans are having to deal with every day. The most he could muster was an acknowledgment that “we’re passing through a time of testing,” as though he were consoling a motorist after a fender bender.

He did offer “our prayers” for victims of Hurricane Laura, and he acknowledged there had been deaths from the coronavirus pandemic, though not how many. But his only pointed and specific words were his attacks against the Democratic nominee – “You won’t be safe in Joe Biden’s America” – and his full-throated endorsement of President Donald Trump’s “law and order” rhetoric.

The vice president rejected the idea of systemic racism, instead focusing on the protest and demanding its end. He blasted “violence and chaos . . . rioting and looting . . . tearing down statues” --with no mention of why those things might be happening.

Pence spoke from an iconic American setting, the site of the War of 1812 battle whose “rocket’s red glare” and “bombs bursting in air” inspired Francis Scott Key to write “The Star-Spangled Banner.” Fort McHenry is meant to symbolize national unity. It was an act of defilement to use such a place for partisan political rhetoric intended to provoke division and fear.

But as far as this Republican convention is concerned, what else is new?

So far, the GOP has misused the White House – the people’s house – to have Trump and his acting secretary of homeland security stage a naturalization ceremony, crassly reducing five newly minted U.S. citizens to photogenic props; have Trump pardon an African American ex-convict, as part of an all-out attempt to whitewash the administration’s shocking racism; and have first lady Melania Trump deliver her convention address, standing before Republican partisans in the Rose Garden she recently renovated.

The party also had Secretary of State Mike Pompeo speak to the convention from Jerusalem, playing an active partisan role in a way no sitting secretary of state has done in living memory – in the middle of an overseas diplomatic trip, no less. He is supposed to represent the entire nation, but apparently he represents only the loyal Trump base.

Trump and his campaign aides see this ostentatious disregard for hallowed norms as an element of the Trump brand. Despite having been in office for 3 1/2 years, Trump still wants to cast himself as some kind of rough-hewn outsider willing to smash all the china, if necessary, to “get things done.” It’s pure razzle-dazzle, designed to create the illusion of blunt effectiveness – and distract from the administration’s dismal, tragic failures.

Pence is supposedly leading the nation’s response to the coronavirus emergency. One might have expected that he, of all speakers, would at least try to deal with that crisis substantively. But one would have been wrong.

As Pence spoke, a potentially catastrophic Category 4 storm was grinding toward landfall along the Gulf Coast. Many thousands of people were trying to evacuate their homes near the Texas-Louisiana border – and, because the Trump administration so bungled its response to COVID-19, had to scramble for shelter and safety in the middle of a raging pandemic.

Meanwhile, Kenosha, Wisconsin, was under a tense dusk-to-dawn curfew following angry protests that were sparked by the shocking police shooting Sunday of yet another Black man, Jacob Blake. Pence apparently hadn’t noticed the reason for the Kenosha protests. And he apparently really didn’t notice the killing Tuesday of two protesters, allegedly by a young White vigilante and Trump supporter.

I wasn’t surprised. Earlier in the evening, the convention brought out Michael McHale, president of the National Association of Police Organizations, to describe Biden (who wrote the 1994 crime bill) and vice-presidential nominee Kamala Harris (a former prosecutor) as somehow anti-police – and call Trump “the most pro-law-enforcement president we’ve ever had.” Be afraid, America, be very afraid.

But what all of this actually reveals is Trump’s own naked fear.

He and the Republicans are pulling these stunts because they know that right now, according to polls, they are losing this election. Badly. And deep down, I hope, at least some of them realize that defeat is what they richly deserve.

Switch to voting by mail completely

Voting by mail should replace voting at the polls in its entirety. The two institutions that can be trusted is the county board of elections and the United States Postal Service (USPS). The money saved by eliminating the need for poll workers could be used to offer free postage on the envelopes used to vote by mail. The person voting would also have more time to consider what they are voting for and would not be confined to the hours of the polling place. It would also prevent unwanted entry to schools and churches from anyone trying to harm someone. Also, the voter would not be harassed by someone trying to place unsolicited campaign literature into their hand. The additional revenue would boost the USPS and perhaps keep it afloat until we as a country can vote online. Voting by mail would solve the registered voter problem and guarantee safe passage of the ballots to the county board of elections. It might even prevent further spread of the COVID-19 virus.

Trump should help resolve dispute involving Ethiopia, Egypt, Sudan

As a concerned member of your constituent, I urge you to work with the Trump administration on the issue of the Grand Ethiopian Renaissance Dam (GERD), a dispute involving Ethiopia, Egypt and Sudan.

The multi-billion-dollar dam is currently under construction over the Nile River. The project, funded solely by Ethiopians, will lift millions out of abject poverty and reliance on foreign aid.

Advise the Trump administration to:

- Respect Ethiopia’s inherent right to use the Nile River equitably, as a contributor of 86 percent of the water.
- Maintain an impartial role in negotiations led by the African Union.
- Refrain from threatening to withhold any assistance – direct aid or loans – as a tool to pressure the Ethiopian government to agree to a deal that’s neither fair nor equitable.
- Refrain from encouraging the World Bank and International Monetary Fund (IMF) to withhold loans.

Support cultured meat research

The Farm System Reform Act – a bill championed by Cory Booker, which would ban factory farms – should include funding for cultured-meat research. For those who don’t know, cultured meat is grown from cells, without slaughtering animals. This technology would ameliorate many problems the Farm System Reform Act seeks to address.

Most obviously, cultured meat resolves concerns about animal welfare, as animals aren’t involved in the process. But it would also benefit human health and the environment. Cultured meat is produced in a sterile environment and doesn’t require artificial growth hormones or unnecessary antibiotics. It requires a fraction of the greenhouse-gas emissions that raising livestock does.

The Farm System Reform Act should fund the development of this revolutionary technology. While cultured meat is fast approaching the market, it will initially be more expensive than its slaughtered, factory-farmed counterpart. This can be remedied by further research.
